Assessment Review Board

Motions

What is a motion?

A motion is a type of hearing event that allows you to ask the Assessment Review Board (ARB) to make an order on a matter before the main hearing. Motions will generally be heard in writing. You will be asked to give your reasons for requesting the order. Examples of common motions include:

- requests for an adjournment;
- requests that the ARB order a party or parties to provide documents or other evidence;
- requests that the ARB provide direction on a procedure that applies to the case; or
- requests to add a person or a party to an appeal.

What is the process for requesting a motion?

Step 1: Complete the Expedited Board Directions form and e-mail it to the ARB at arb.registrar@ontario.ca requesting that a motion be scheduled, along with a summary of what you will be asking the ARB to do.

Step 2: Wait for the ARB to respond to your request. The ARB will inform you if your request is granted or if a motion is required. If a motion is required, the ARB will hear the motion in writing, unless you are specifically informed otherwise.

Step 3: Once the ARB notifies you of the motion, you must send to the other parties involved:

- your Notice of Motion, which sets out what you are requesting and why you are requesting it;
- an affidavit, which is a brief and clear sworn statement, setting out the facts that support your request;
- a statement of what you want the ARB to order; and
- copies of any documents that will be used at the motion.

Can a party respond to a Notice of Motion?

Yes, a party can respond to a Notice of Motion. The responding party must deliver a Notice of Response to the ARB if they intend to:

- Oppose the motion; or
- Provide an affidavit as evidence in support of the responding party's position.

The parties are required to confer among themselves to set the schedule for the exchange of their documents and affidavits to be filed on the motion. The parties should let the ARB know the schedule as soon as possible. If there is no agreement on a schedule, the ARB will set the schedule.

What if there is an emergency?

The Board will make its best efforts to schedule a motion as soon as possible after the request in emergency circumstances.
